Career Workshops

- (1) What Law School Doesn't Teach You, But You Need to Know
- (2) It's Who You Know: Networking Tips

(3) Public Interest Careers: What Skills Are They Looking For?

Public Interest Summer Job Search Webinars

This free two-part webinar series provides law students with insight on the key elements of the summer public interest job application process. Attorneys with years of application review experience highlight what you should and shouldn't do; explain how and why public interest application materials may substantively differ from law firm materials; and explore the dynamics of personal interactions in interviews and networking situations. View videos and download slides from the Webinars: (1) Best Practices in Drafting Cover Letters and Resumes and (2) Best Practices in Interviewing and In-person Networking.

Free Career Resources

The American Bar Association's Law Practice Management section is working to engage more junior attorneys and has free resources to assist both lawyers and law students. Their publications page offers electronic versions of Law Practice magazine and Law Practice Today. It also offers a chance to sign up for a free subscription to Law Practice Today, which is a free monthly webzine. Law Practice Today has initiated a monthly Career Path Profile, featuring an interview with an attorney from a specific practice area with recommendations for new attorneys who would like to enter that field.
